NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. B. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

EASTERN DATES TO AUGUST 3.

Rumored Alliance between Austria, Italy and France.

PARIS, August 4.—A special cable dispatch to the New York Herald says it is positively asserted that Austria and Italy have entered into an alliance with France. The menacing attitude of England toward France, as exhibited by the English press and the pressure on Parliament for an increased armament, seeming to suggest more than a possibility of English co-operation with Prussia, in which case the security of Austria might be endangered, is said to have hastened the alliance.

The Presse says the declaration of Duke de Grammont regarding the neutrality of Belgium, recently sent to London, will soon be communicated to Parliament.

Advices from Basle announce a large force of troops arrived in that vicinity to sustain the Baden troops. The fall of English consols is considered at Basle as a certain sign of the intervention of England.

Movements of Troops.

PARIS, August 4.—The heights taken by the French at Saarbrucken form a key of railroad approaches to Treves. Hence the importance of the conquest.

LONDON, August 3.—A cable dispatch says a large force of Wurtemberg troops have arrived in that vicinity to sustain the Baden troops.

Dutch troops now occupy Harlem and Utrecht, and various points on the Yezel.

Telegrams from Amsterdam confirm the report of the French exploit at Saarbrucken, but call it a coup de theatre to act at Paris, and not a success.

The Prussians regard Saarbrucken as a position without military value and entrusted to only two companies.

LONDON, August 3.—Prince Frederick Charles is reported ill at Odeberg.

English Affairs.

LONDON, August 3.—In the House of Commons, Baxter, Secretary of Admiralty, said no augmentation of the navy was designed. Sailors could easily be had and coal was abundant.

The Canadian coal bill has passed.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have returned to England.

England and Belgian Neutrality.

LONDON, August 3.—The following is a special to the New York Tribune: The disappointment at Gladstone's failure to make a positive declaration to protect Belgium, on Monday night, seems far more general and even indignant than yesterday. To day the people are no longer silent. The Liberals and Conservatives complain bitterly that the government fails to comprehend the determination of the people, and that Gladstone's economical and sentimental shirking from war, threatens to precipitate England into the very conflict he seeks to avoid. Lord Russell's speech to-night against France, represented a more liberal feeling—far better than Gladstone's, and was heartily applauded in both Houses. The statement he drew from Granville is not explicit, but was significant of a more decided policy than before announced. Still it does not meet the views of the strong party, which will insist that the only way for England to keep out of war is by a frank assertion of her readiness to go into it when necessary.

LONDON, August 4, Noon.—The Bank of England has just announced a still further advance on the rate of discount of 5 per cent. The minimum is now 6 per cent.

Severe Engagement at Weisenberg.

CARLSRUHE, August 4.—A special to the New York Herald at 5:30 P. M. says: There has been hard fighting at Weisenberg yesterday and to-day. A large force of Prussians advanced between Weisenberg and Lauterberg, 10 miles into French territory, driving in the advanced posts of the enemy, and destroying several miles of railroad between Lauterberg and Strasburg, along which it is supposed MacMahon was preparing to advance. The French loss is heavy, including many prisoners.

A special correspondent of the New York Tribune telegraphs from the Prussian headquarters that the Crown Prince's army stormed Weisenberg. The troops of the fifth and eleventh divisions of the Prussian army, reinforced by the second Bavarian corps, engaged General Douay's division of Marshal McMahon's corps. The French were driven off the field. The Prussians now occupy the French camps. Several hundred French soldiers were taken prisoners, and the Prussian loss was considerable. No movement is announced from the lower Rhine. The French force consisted of Douay's division of McMahon's corps. Weisenberg and Gerschell in the rear of the town, were carried by storm at the point of the bayonet.

The Herald's cable special adds: Latest. The Prussian victory at Weisenberg is decisive. After obstinate resistance General, who commanded the French in the absence of Douay was killed with the officers of his staff. The French lost one piece of artillery and five hundred wounded and prisoners, including many Turcos, fell into the hands of the Prussians. On the German side General Kirschbach was wounded. The grenadier guard and fiftieth regiments suffered severely.

Dispatch from Madrid.

MADRID, August 3.—Reinforcements to the number of 15,000 leave in September for Cuba. The amnesty proclamation has been postponed.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—Quinn, the alleged murderer of Maggie Ryan, evinces the greatest terror of being mobbed, and in court, each time of its adjournment, hurrying to a part of the room furthest from the audience, as if expecting immediate violence. There is not the slightest cause for his anxiety, as the trial attracts very little attention as compared with the Neuval trial, and the public mind is wholly occupied with other subjects.

An American merchant in Japan, possessed of great influence with the Government of that country, having frequently acted as its agent in different negotiations, is now here on a visit to his family. He will go East next week. He was wrecked on a desert island from the ill fated ship Libelle, and made the trip of 240 miles in an open boat with Madame Anna Bishop, Prince Kisabro and others, reaching the Portuguese island of Guam in safety.

Mrs. Henry Martin died suddenly at 401 Stevenson street to-day.

The rate of legal tenders for August for revenue purposes, has been fixed at 85 cents.

Pauline Pregel, a native of Germany, 18 years of age, was ordered to the Asylum at Stockton.

A grand special exhibition at the Pavilion is announced to open Aug. 29th, for five days. The exhibition will be of fruits, flowers, plants, wines, ferns, shrubs, vegetables, etc. $2,000 will be awarded to competitors in the products of the soil. The Society's gold medal will be awarded for California wines.

Testimony for the defence in the Quinn case has commenced and several witnesses examined, it goes to show his unsoundness of mind, that being the line of defence adopted.

200 persons, connected with the 8th street Methodist Church at Sacramento, visited San Francisco to-day, on an excursion to Woodward's Gardens.

A large number of people from Marysville, Sacramento, Vallejo, and other points, propose attending the funeral of the late Dr. Rice, to-morrow.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

The Law Relative to Voting.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Attorney General Akerman has sent copies of the act enforcing the rights of citizens of the United States to vote, to all United States Attorneys, Marshals and Clerks of Courts.

Political News.

RICHMOND, August 4.—The Conservative Central Committee has issued an address recommending the postponement of Congressional nominations until the State is registered. They recommended the party to support the National party, which upholds constitutional liberty, equal laws and just administration.

The World's Raleigh special says the election yesterday was attended by scenes of riot and bloodshed between the whites and negroes, that the election returns are very meagre, and indicate largely increased conservative majorities throughout the State. There is a heavy falling off in the Radical vote. The Conservatives claim four out of seven Congressmen and large majorities in both branches of the Legislature, but nothing definite is known as yet.

A special Stockholm dispatch says the Haluge arrived here July 24th, with the Ministers of Foreign Affairs and War. A Council of State was held on the following day, at which it was decided to declare the complete neutrality of Sweden and Norway, and the press approve this declaration. Sweden is utterly unprepared for war. She has but 50,000 Remington Rifles, and but 5,000,000 of ball cartridges, instead of 10,000,000 absolutely required according to the Minister of War, for service. The field armory is still worse off, and includes only 25 batteries and 15 guns. Not one fortress can withstand a siege. Carlscrona, which is considered the strongest place in Sweden, could not hold out a week. But one Norwegian paper advocates taking part in the war.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Government has issued another circular reaffirming that the aggressive propositions originated in Berlin. France made none. On the contrary, she commenced her disarmament. Count Von Bismarck based his proposals on his anxiety about the plans of Russia, details of which Duke de Grammont temporarily withholds. The Duke concludes, that owing to falsehoods Bismarck has already uttered through fear, he has lost all claim to be believed hereafter.

Two coal ships with full cargoes, the Sea Chief and Bayard, arrived from New Castle to-day.

The testimony in the Maggie Ryan murder case was concluded this afternoon, and to-morrow will be devoted to arguments of the counsel. The defence will rest solely on the unsoundness of the prisoner's mind.

Since the prostitute fund has been raised to test the right of police to prevent women from standing in front of or in doorways of houses of ill fame to attract attention, it has been determined to test their right to keep such houses within the limits of the city. Warrants are issued for the arrest of the keepers of several of the worst known.

Participants in the printers' strike now generally concede it to be a failure, and many say that if permitted by the Union, they would be glad to return to work at the old rates. It is probable that some of the offices now working Union compositors, will employ others, independent of the organization, soon.

MICHIGAN BLUFFS, August 5.—The bodies of two men, named Louis Stephens and Alexander McSane, were found floating in the Middle Fork of the American river, near Horse Shoe, this morning. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased came to their death by falling off the trail into the river.

TRUCKEE, August 5.—A fire occurred this afternoon five miles west of Truckee on the railroad. The fire originated in a pile of slab wood, near Stanford's mill, from which the mill caught on fire and was entirely destroyed, together with about one and a half miles of snow sheds, ruining the road and making it impossible for trains to pass for some days. Passengers and the express are transferred at the break. The wires of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, running through the snow sheds, were destroyed. Loss, heavy.

Prussia and the War.

[From the New York Times, July 22.]

The King of Prussia, in his speech to the North German Parliament on the opening of the session, alluded to the war as a struggle "without which Europe can never be at lasting peace." This is a very candid commentary on the situation. The policy of Prussia being what it is, and the interests of France being what they are, war was inevitable. Even if it could be averted now and nothing short of a miracle could do it—the contest would have to be fought out at some future time. Two very ambitious Powers are anxious to take the leading place in Europe. We do not now say which we ought to sympathize with. That is a matter of feeling and of opinion. What we have to deal with is the fact that the war has been as clearly foreseen by Count von Bismarck as by the Emperor Napoleon. It is nonsense to say that Napoleon has taken Prussia unawares. Bismarck laid down a course of action which it would require years to complete, and he has been steadily pushing on his plans, well knowing in what quarters he would provoke opposition. First of all, Austria had to be cleared out of the way. That was a matter of no great difficulty. But that was not the end. France had grave interests at stake, and it was only a question at what point of Bismarck's design she would step in and interfere. Perhaps the Prussian Minister did not anticipate that the Spanish plot would be the critical move—more probably he did foresee it, and determined to provoke the unavoidable conflict on that very question. He has not been caught in a trap. He knew very well that a war with France would complete his great project of "German unity" by bringing over the South German Confederation in a body—and he was content to take the risks of a war as the price of this advantage.

"Not Prussia alone, but the entire German nation, rises in its full majesty against the audacious man who presumes to trample nations into the dust to gratify his princely lust." Such is the language of the preamble to the resolutions passed last night at the meeting of the Germans held in this city. The "audacious man" is, of course, Napoleon III. In other quarters the opinion is confidently expressed that the result of the war will be to extinguish Napoleon. That looks simple enough on paper, but it is among the peculiarities of Napoleon that he is not easily "extinguished." It is in his favor at present that the French people are at his back, not to mention the possibility of Austria and Italy likewise ranging themselves on his side. The support of England is counted upon for Prussia—no one can say with what justice, for the foreign politics of England are always a muddle. England went into a costly war for the purpose of maintaining a Mohammedan Prince in Europe. She gave her sympathies to the Southern States at a time when it was very necessary for her future well being that she should have supported the North. She looked on and saw Denmark crushed, notwithstanding that a Danish Princess is to be the future Queen of England. No one would be surprised if she now decided to make deadly enemies of her nearest neighbors and her most powerful ally, Prussia would receive her aid, and leave her to settle her own score with France.

We are told that the cause of Prussia is the cause of liberty. It may be so—we do not propose to go into that question at present. But Bismarck was not always above making terms with despotism. It was only the other day that liberty of speech and of the Press was suppressed in Prussia. When the war against Austria was decided upon, it has been stated, and never contradicted, that Bismarck promised the Emperor Napoleon the Rhine Provinces as the reward of his neutrality. The bargain is said to have been concluded at Biarritz. The Emperor has waited for the fulfillment of the contract, and instead of getting his promised spoils, he has seen Prussia endeavoring to extend her protecting arms beyond the Pyrenees. But there is such a document as the Treaty of Prague in existence, and instead of fulfilling the stipulations it involved Bismarck has treated it with derision. These are among the causes of the war which historians will have to consider, and which we may as well keep in sight now. We commend the Germans here and elsewhere for the patriotic spirit they are displaying. From their point of view they are quite in the right. They pursue a course which is highly honorable to them—only outside observers may be permitted to recognize the truth, that some excuse may be made for the present feeling of the French people. The two great intriguers of the age are now standing with crossed swords. We as spectators may sympathize with which we please, but the fact remains that both are seeking territorial conquest. The lust of power is not confined to either side. Nothing is easier than to predict the overthrow of Napoleon. After him, however, France will survive. And before she can be overthrown, we must expect a war on a scale which even this blood-stained century has never seen surpassed.

The Explosive Bullet.

This is a fearful agent of destruction, the use of which in practical warfare has been declined by the United States and Europe. It was designed by one Pertuiset, executed by a French artisan in the celebrated fire-arms factory of Denesine, and is fully described in a late number of the Army and Navy Journal as follow:

Externally quite similar to the original Minie, a cylindro-conical mass of lead, it is discovered, by an unscrewing of its length about midway, to be internally a magazine of fulminate. The explosive compound—dynamite powder, condensed powder, or whatever it may be—has an explosive force six times that of gunpowder. Experiments which have been made under the patronage of the Russian, Prussian and Austrian Governments and lastly by our own War Department, demonstrate not only its effectiveness, but the singular properties its inventors has given to it. "Being given the distance of the target, its density, the quantity of charge in the gun and the same of the ingredients constituting the projectile," he has established a most exact relation, by accurate calculation, between the force necessary to explode the projectile and its penetration before subjection to this pressure. Thus the magazine can be so constituted that the passage of the bullet through a sheet of paper will explode it, or so that the severe impact of iron or hardwood is needed for such a result. It is comforting to to be assured that "a ball which would not explode in the body of a soldier or of a horse, if not at a very limited distance, would explode in the more resisting body of an ammunition wagon."

If we believed in the prophetical powers of Prophet B. Young, we should be sad—very sad indeed. For the aforesaid Brigham, being visited by a correspondent of the Missouri Democrat, did with great confidence declare that "a Republican Government was taking the United States to hell as fast as it could." Being also asked if he saw a Providence in the emancipation of the slaves, he answered promptly and decisively "Not a d—d bit of it." From the freedom with which he indulges in it one would think that Brigham suffered the prosperity of the Mormons to depend upon the amount of profane and blasphemous language which he can manage to introduce into his sermons.

The New York Evening Post heads an article about the proposed nomination of Wendell Phillips as Minister to England with the words, "Sending a Bull into a China Shop."

French and Prussian Armies Compared

General Sigel has recently contributed to a Eastern journal published in the German language a series of essays on the military aspects of the conflict between France and Prussia in which the chances of success in favor of each power are carefully weighed and compared. The knowledge of European affairs which General Sigel possesses, together with his military education, impart an interest to his views and opinions, and we condense from an English translation of his articles which appears in a contemporary journal some account of them. The army of a nation, General Sigel observes, represents the spirit and character, the moral and physical qualities, of that nation. If in any of these respects one nation has the advantage of another its army will possess a relative superiority. By the general system of enforced public instruction in Prussia education is much more general there than in France. But on the other hand General Sigel admits what we should have been inclined to doubt, viz —that France has the advantage of Prussia in the more general development of industry, in manifold manufactures, and in the resources of skill and knowledge derived from universal industrial progress and development. In the organization of the armies of the two nations each has its defects and advantages. In the Prussian army all orders and classes are represented and intelligence is effectually distributed even among the rank and file. Hence educated men in the ranks of the Prussian army exert upon their comrades a very important and moral influence. But in France many belonging to the upper and educated classes purchase exemption from military service or employ substitutes so that the rank and file consist mainly of the lower and uneducated orders and of those whose circumstances are such that they are unable to purchase exemption from service in the army. In this particular, therefore, the personnel of the Prussian army is better than that of France. The patriotism, the pride, the attachment to political principles, and the growth of national sentiment, all of which are powerfully developed by the diffusion of intelligence among a people, improve the morale of an army. But on the other hand the the French army has an advantage over that of Prussia in the recognition and employment of a principle which powerfully stimulates men to make exertions for military renown. This principle is that a career of fame and glory shall be open to enterprising talents, and that common soldiers shall have an opportunity to raise themselves by good conduct and valor to the highest military positions. It was in the great Revolution that this principle had its origin, and it was steadily adhered to by the first Napoleon, who thus drew around him that combination of military talent which enabled him to subjugate all Europe. No places of trust were bought of him by rank and fortune, and this principle is still in force in the French army. Such allurements to humble ambition, the most powerful that can be presented to the human mind, are wanting in the Prussian service, where not only all the higher commands of the regular army and the militia (Landwehr) and all the staff appointments, but the positions of the subaltern officers are held exclusively by members of the nobility. In Prussia the common citizen is forced into the ranks without hope or chance of promotion. In France he is taken as a conscript but has an opportunity by distinguishing himself and exhibiting his talents to become a general officer or a Marshal of the Empire. In the opinion of General Sigel Prussia has a decided advantage over France in the possession of a tougher and more vigorous population, and he expects the physical strength of the Prussian soldier, the determined and steady valor proverbial with the German race, and that sturdy national character which is neither unduly elated by victory nor depressed by defeat, to tell with advantage, especially if the contest be a long one, on the side of the Prussian arms.

Two Democratic Speeches

Congressman Smith in his speech last night, after congratulating his party for its recent victory in this State, began to talk of his own illustrious career in Congress. He would premise by telling what he had not done. This opened up a large subject, and the Congressman, finding that he could not begin to do it justice, soon dropped it. Then he undertook to tell what he had done. Never before, perhaps, did it take a gentleman of Mr Smith's ready utterance so long to tell so little. He boasted that all the measures relating to Oregon which had passed the Senate were also passed through the House, and plumed himself mightily on this fact. But he did not state that the Oregon Senators labored as zealously to get their measures through the House as they had labored to pass them through the Senate. Those measures would have gone through the House just as well without Mr Smith's help as with it, and in point of fact the west side railroad bill would have passed weeks before it did, had he not been in the way.

A portion of Mr Smith's address was devoted to railway matters. He reasserted his objections to a railway for Southern Oregon, and argued in the capacity of an attorney for the Ladd-Pengra scheme and the Central Pacific Railroad Company. Whatever other prominent Democrats may do, Mr Smith is resolved to adhere to his course of opposition to the railroad interests of Southern Oregon.

Mr Stark began his speech with a grace and suavity that did him credit. He had been absent from Oregon for a number of years. On his way up, as he entered the Columbia river, he was delighted to find the mouth of that noble stream in the same place where it was many years before, and to observe that the locality of Cape Disappointment was still unchanged. Also he observed with satisfaction that Mount St Helen was still there. A similar remark might have been made, as we suppose, in reference to Mount Hood, though that fact had doubtless thus far escaped the speaker's observation. He came on to Portland and was astonished to find that somebody had been here during his absence. (No doubt his audience at this point expected him to inquire in pathetic tones, "Who's bin here while I se bin gone?") When he went away from Oregon some years ago the State was Democratic. He now returned and found it Democratic again. (Of course there was no use in living in the State while it was under Republican rule, as there would be no chance of being sent back to the Senate. But now was just the time for a judicious Democrat like Mr Stark to return.) This was about all Mr Stark had to say, and he quitted the stand with a style and deportment that Mr Turveydrop himself might admire.

It is manifest now why [illegible] as well for the purpose of [illegible] taxes [illegible] State [illegible] regulations. [illegible] have deliberately [illegible] of values for the purpose of shirking the payment of the portion of State tax. This was [illegible] Wasco. No doubt [illegible] property [illegible] county assessments. The only remedy is in the [illegible] of a State Board of Equalization [illegible] the Legislature [illegible] to [illegible] the appropriate [illegible].

Do the Democratic organs actually mean to advertise that their members elect of the Legislature are for sale? If not why do they so continually assert that there will be a [illegible] chance for bribery? We protest against the slander which the Democratic papers thus impliedly cast upon the Legislature of our State. Evidently they have conceived the absurd idea that there is danger that the Democratic Legislature will be bribed in the election of a Senator and they are trying to infuse fortitude and virtue into [illegible] them to cause them to resist all advances of the kind.

The Herald has it that the reception of ex Senator Stark and Congressman Smith was the most imposing demonstration ever witnessed in Portland. That [illegible] is as good a joke as it would be to say that the Herald, a paper which even the country Democratic press sneers at and treats with contempt, is the best journal ever published in Oregon.

OREGON

Rev W R Stewart has taken charge of the United Presbyterian Church at Salem.

The Salem mills are now making and shipping 1 500 barrels of flour per week, mostly from old wheat.

The contract for plastering the Commercial Hotel at Salem has been let to Huntington & Ballion of this city, who will have the job completed within a few weeks. The hotel will be opened early in September.

Early in the week Judge Upton decided that mandamus must issue commanding Ex Sheriff Myers of Clackamas county to deliver up the county jail and appurtenances to Sheriff Warner. We learn that Myers now claims the right to appeal from the order relative to mandamus and to stay proceedings till the appeal is settled.

The Statesman has seen a letter from O C Applegate, in which he says he has been employed in locating a wagon road on a new and more direct route from Rogue River to the Klamath country, and has succeeded in marking out a better route than has ever been opened for travel before. He adds: "A few days ago while exploring I stood on Lookout Mountain, one of the loftiest peaks of the White Mountains, a snowy cluster of peaks connected with the Cascade range. In all my mountaineering I never before had the gratification of looking upon so vast an extent of country from the same point. From the head of the Deschutes to the valley of the Sacramento the whole country was spread out before us like a map; fourteen lakes could be seen at one time."

The new apparatus received for the use of Pacific University at Forest Grove is described to us as being of new and excellent construction: "The electrical machine is of great power, so that a jar can be charged in a few moments, and charged so heavily that unless great care be used it will be perforated. I have seen a jar perforated in three places at once, a thing that never happened with the old machines. The air pump is of the most approved construction and is an excellent instrument. A powerful galvanic battery, pneumatic apparatus, a powerful microscope that would show the Lord's prayer legibly upon a spot not larger than a small pin's head, telegraph apparatus, etc etc, are here for use, and make the best collection of scientific apparatus in the State."

THE TERRITORIES

The entire population of Owyhee county, Idaho, is 2,100.

Work has been resumed on the New York mine at Owyhee, which is said to be yielding rich gold and silver bearing ore, similar in character to that of the Ida Elmore.

The Salt Lake Reporter states that Dr Simmons of Lewiston, has been lecturing in Corinne on the great northern Idaho murder of Magruder and party at Bitter Root mountains a few years since. He also exhibited the skulls of Lowry, Howard, Romain and Page, the murderers, and explained the physiological structure of the brain, illustrating the influence of the animal propensities on the [illegible].

From the Owyhee Avalanche: We have it from good authority that Capt. Myrick has purchased the Ainsworth quartz mill on Sinker creek and will immediately convert it into a water mill. He has gone to Portland for a turbine wheel and other necessary machinery. We believe it will be chiefly used to work ore from the Surplus Oro Fino, in which the Captain owns a large interest. There are already several hundred tons on the dump.

A letter from Snake river (Shoshone City) gives the following relative to the mines: The rush is up the river, above Shoshone Falls. Those who pretend to be posted have but little faith in the river, and you find but few at work, but from this place up the bars appear to be rich, and the excitement here is the big canyon, one hundred and fifty miles above. Men are leaving for there every day. It is quite evident that the gold has come down the river, and that there are rich deposits in that direction is a fixed fact. The rush here is immense. Men are coming from all directions. Some leave without even taking a look at the diggings, while others look around for a few days and leave for the big canyon.

American Sympathies in the War

The Philadelphia Press a few days ago published several columns of extracts from the leading newspapers of the country showing which side in the coming European contest has the sympathies of our people. It then says editorially:

By careful reading and condensation we are enabled to present at one view the expression of opinion of the representative journals from all sections of the land. Its unanimity and spontaneity may well be called remarkable. There are well grounded reasons, however, for a sympathy of feeling between the people of the United States and of Prussia. We both lead in our respective continents as the best common schooled nations and the exponents of the grand idea of national unity. Throughout all our country Germany is well and strongly represented in the hundreds of thousands of substantial and orderly citizens she has contributed to our population.

It is an encouraging indication of the healthy state of our national mind that there is no division of feeling on the question of this war between the Democratic and Republican press. Instinctively both alike declare for Prussia, the representative of the united States of Europe.

A correspondent of the New York Express is responsible for the story that on the arrival of the Indians at Washington all denominations set to work to convert them. [illegible] Red Cloud was taken with his interpreter to see a most remarkable picture of the Crucifixion in the gallery of Mr Corcoran, and the whole subject was thoroughly explained to him, and evidently impressed him in a certain way, for sitting at Willard's a short time after, a very strongly marked Jew entered. Red Cloud made a dive at him and almost choked the unconscious Israelite before they were separated. Explanations were given. Red Cloud accused him of taking part in the Crucifixion. He assured him he had nothing to do with it, and it happened two thousand years ago. Red Cloud replied he had heard of it ten minutes before.

"Sambo, did you ever see the Catskill mountains?" "No sah, but I've seen um kill mice."

SUMMER WANDERINGS

VICTORIA

The harbor of Victoria is a [illegible] with a narrow and crooked entrance. It was first selected by the Hudson's Bay Company as [illegible] in 1843, when the supply station for [illegible] was removed from Fort Vancouver on the Columbia, and was large enough for the purposes of that Company while it was small [illegible] a great [illegible] the Chief Factor who selected the new site for a fort weighed the beauty of the prospect in the balance and found it [illegible] heavily on the side of his inclinations.

SETTLEMENT OF VANCOUVER'S ISLAND

In 1849 the Puget Sound Agricultural Association attempted to form a colony on the island, which increased very slowly in numbers until the breaking out of the gold excitement in 1858. The history of the frantic rush which followed the publication of the Frazer river discoveries is too well known and too well remembered to need reference. It was the fame of this great excitement, however, that induced the British Government to revoke its grant of exclusive right to trade in the Northwest Territories for so many years held by the Hudson's Bay Company and to erect a new colony under the name of British Columbia. Of the new colony Mr James Douglas (now Sir James), once well known in Oregon, was made the first Governor.

THE FORTUNES OF VICTORIA

The reaction of the first disappointment on Frazer's river retarded the colony until 1861, when the rumor of rich discoveries in Cariboo revived the gold fever and the tide of immigration set in again. Victoria had its most rapid growth in the two or three years immediately following, and at one time presented the spectacle over again which San Francisco and Sydney had already successively astonished the world. But her career was brief owing to several causes, some of which were local and physical, while others were traditionary and political. The physical reasons for the reverses at Victoria were the severe winter climate of the richest mining region, the cost of getting to it and of living when there, and the scant agricultural resources of Vancouver's Island. The political ones were those which usually beset a distant Crown colony with an expensive government to maintain, and none but second hand representation.

From this brief history the reader may the more readily understand why about one third of the houses in the truly beautiful city of Victoria stand empty, and the streets have an air of Sunday quiet about them. From my room at the St George I look across the street, and my eye falls upon vacancy—that is to say upon a vacant residence, whose "doored and windowed raggedness" is shocking and demoralizing in the extreme. I say demoralizing, because to my certain knowledge, two or three people are longing to apply the incendiary torch in order to abate the nuisance of its unextenuated ugliness. And what is true of the St George's parlor views, is true of very many other houses both public and private in Victoria. In truth the morning papers have an advertisement to this effect: "Wanted—A small family to occupy a house. Rent free." Had I wished to summer in Victoria here was a chance! Nothing but the absence of furniture, rent free, could deter any reasonable renter from taking such a house. And yet I could not learn that rents were actually much lower than in the crowded city of Portland.

While I am on the subject of the St. George—that is to say of mine inn—I wish to put on record that it is the best ordered hotel north of the southern boundary of Oregon, and when I make that statement it is proper to define what is meant by the phrase. In the first place a gentlemanly host who puts himself in immediate communication with his guests, whereby their wishes become known to him and thereafter in immediate communication also with his servants, who not only take his orders, but actually execute them. The result is a highly satisfactory one—clean rooms, faultless beds, punctual attendance, a table spread with immaculate linen, food cooked in the very best style of the culinary art, and served in a way to look tempting to the daintiest appetite. No noise, no confusion, no dirt. I pay this tribute most cordially to mine host of the St George, and I commend my fellow Oregonians to his care, feeling sure that their comfort will be secured, if they place themselves in his hands.

RAILROAD FEVER AMONG THE BRITISH COLONISTS

I had enough of table-talk and saw enough of the morning papers to find that the people of Victoria are agitating railroad about as earnestly as their American neighbors. The Colonist declares that the Canadian Pacific Railway is a necessity, a possibility, a certainty, and talks very sensibly of its importance in every point of view. It also believes the Imperial Government will guarantee loans sufficient to build it. The Standard doubts most of the assumptions of its contemporary, and sees plainly all the obstacles in the way of the proposed railroad. The impartial observer cannot help acknowledging the feasibility—supposing the British Imperial Government willing to furnish the means—of such a railway from the St Lawrence to the Gulf of Georgia, nor in such an event, the great benefit of such a railway to the British colonies. The benefit, however, is dependent upon certain political conditions yet to be effected—for in the present state of British Columbia no movement can be made which could possibly extricate the colony from its embarassments or enable it to take advantage of the credit of the home government.

CONFEDERATION OR ANNEXATION

To ameliorate their condition, all parties are demanding confederation with Canada, yet judging from the Canadian papers, there would be much left to be desired after that. Yankee like I put the question, annexation? very gently though and entirely without remark. Out of four answers to the inquiry three declared that confederation was the wish of their hearts. The fourth was to this effect: that the property owners of Victoria strongly desired annexation, but that the Government officials opposed it, and another class opposed it who had nothing to lose by the constant depreciation of property on the Island—such as freshly imported young men who did not yet fairly feel the wants of the colony. That, I think, is about the way it stands. Patriotism, official integrity and British pride are opposed to annexation. Every other interest is in favor of it. The Victorians for instance lament the new order of things with regard to running the steamer California up the Sound, and touching only at their wharves. By this course a considerable business is diverted from Victoria to American ports. "Of course the Americans are right," says one to me; "but they evidently regard it as a coercive measure looking toward annexation."

FUTURE OF VICTORIA

One cannot help thinking if it were annexed what a glorious city Victoria would become. Commencing a new city on Esquimalt harbor and building it up to the site of the present town, perhaps connecting the two harbors as has been talked of by means of a canal across the peninsula. But remaining as she is, even now when she has become a degree more independent, she is too near to American enterprise not to be injured by it, and the same is true of British Columbia all the way to the Lake of the Woods. The Northern Pacific Railroad will draw to itself the agricultural and mineral wealth of a large extent of territory whose resources are as ample as they are at present little understood by Americans.

That the agricultural and climatic advantages of British Columbia are not well known to general readers is no fault of British writers. The number of books and pamphlets treating of British Columbia and Vancouver's Island is very great, and form quite a library of interesting matter.

AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES

There is little good land on Vancouver's Island. The largest body of it lying on the east side toward the Gulf of Georgia. Sheep raising is carried on to a considerable extent. The fleeces being reported light, but the mutton excellent. Fruit, so far as cultivated, does well. But the wealth of the Island lies in its timber, coal and fisheries.

NANAIMO AND THE COAL MINES

Nanaimo is a small town on the Island about seventy miles from Victoria on the Gulf of Georgia, with no communication except by sea, and dependent upon the coal mines for its population. Until recently the Nanaimo coal was considered the best on the coast for steaming purposes. It has of late had a rival in the coal of Queen Charlotte's Island, which is claimed to be the best of anthracite. The specimen which I saw was hard and glossy, but lighter than the Pennsylvania anthracite, and I fancy burns out faster. The analysis given is as follows:

Moisture	[illegible]
Volatile combustible matter	[illegible]
Fixed carbon	[illegible]
Ash	6 40
	99 99
Specific gravity	1 4

Comparing with the Nanaimo coal thus:

Carbon	66 93
Volatile and combustible matter	[illegible]
Ash	15 93
	100 00
Specific gravity	1 4

The Queen Charlotte Coal Mining Company will have expended $60,000 when their works are completed, and expect to realize an annual profit of $[illegible] upon [illegible] tons of coal shipped to San Francisco after paying $[illegible] per ton freight.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

From facts such as these we gather hints of the immense mineral resources of the Northwest coast. Gold and copper from the interior will be counted ultimately among these resources, and without doubt iron and salt. The salt springs of the Island furnish [illegible] grains of salt to the imperial gallon.

The great drawback to Victoria is the want of good water on the spot. The supply at present is brought from a distance in carts at a considerable expense. I [illegible] to this sentence but you [illegible] for its truthfulness [illegible] every day see the cart at the door of the St George which supplies this establishment. There is talk of an appropriation [illegible] the water works already commenced I believe. Gas of a good quality is furnished by a joint stock company.

It is said that the educational facilities of Victoria are good, but of that I could not judge. The Church of England's edifice was burned to the ground two years ago, but will be rebuilt in much grander proportions as soon as the Bishop has collected in England a sum sufficient to carry out the plans. The Presbyterians have a handsome new brick church, and other denominations have houses of less pretension. Dry goods stores in Victoria are handsomely fitted up with showy goods fit for a large city. They find their patrons in a certain aristocratic class connected with the government, and in American visitors who can buy some coveted articles cheaper here than at home. The temptation to buy an outfit is only held in check by the fear of having the pretty things confiscated, which fear no doubt saves the pockets of American husbands and papas materially.

CITY.

THE [illegible] STARK [illegible] —According to programme Congressman Smith and ex Senator Stark were [illegible] the [illegible] to be in [illegible] phonic [illegible] Mr Smith Mr Stark and [illegible] in other gen[illegible] appeared on [illegible] of the [illegible] and Mr Smith [illegible] the stand to [illegible] make a speech. He opened by [illegible] proceeded [illegible] thanking his friends for his kind greeting, congratulating the Democracy upon the victory they had gloriously won at the late election, and then [illegible] upon his subject into the grand divisions of what he hadn't done and what he had done. He went on [illegible] Joseph's [illegible] to tell firstly what he had not done. This, as may be easily conceived, was much the larger grand division of the speech, and for awhile it seemed probable that he might go on all night without ever getting [illegible]. It seemed only [illegible] but he did [illegible]. The fact is, Joseph gave his own horn a very prolonged [illegible] at a [illegible] timid or modest [illegible] before he sounded [illegible]. He had not [illegible] much of a human doubt [illegible] the only human event that could [illegible] Congress was [illegible] have effected the passage of the Oregon railroad bills or the Northern Pacific railroad bill. He said it apparent [illegible] peace of mind hereafter that had a [illegible] to his [illegible] Republican been elected to a Republican Congress from Oregon, neither the Oregon land grants nor the Northern Pacific land grants could have been obtained. Joseph [illegible] this too. He must have been or he [illegible] Then Joseph [illegible] how he had always been [illegible] except when absent, and how he had in [illegible] to all matters of interest to Oregon [illegible] labored incessantly, how he had been instant in season and out of season, how he had watched and prayed and how upon his Atlantean shoulders he had borne the burdens of the Pacific coast, etc, etc. This part of the speech was a [illegible] for Joseph, and then he went on to say something about himself as a modest man naturally would on such an occasion. This part of his speech concluded, he made some personal allusions of a rather flattering character to himself, in connection with certain Congressional labors in which he assured his friends he participated. At [illegible] point we almost had come to the conclusion that the Hon Kelly had stumbled upon a new competitor for the Senate [illegible] but as Joseph did not again allude to anybody but Joseph, we dismissed the unworthy suspicion and settled back upon the original conviction entertained by everybody that Joseph no longer hankers after the fleshpots of office, and that he wouldn't under any circumstances accept so worldly and withal so profitless a place unless asked. But here Joseph began to get hoarse and aware that he must soon close. He would not say that our Senators had not done what they could, but then what could be expected of "A Senators?" It was extremely fortunate for Oregon that he had been born and sent to Congress just exactly at the right time. With an allusion or two to the speaker, which he trusted would not be taken as egotistical, he got much hoarser and quit. There were cheers of course, and a blast from the band. Then came a party of the name of Stark, who made a [illegible] fight or two, got very grateful for this very flattering demonstration in his honor, and then [illegible]. Here then were more cheers and more [illegible] by the band, more speeches by one or two local politicians, and then the Smith Stark serenade came to an end.

METHODIST ITEMS.—From the Advocate of this morning:

The camp-meeting for the Dalles charge, to [illegible] on the [illegible] inst., will be held on land owned by Mr [illegible], three miles west of that [illegible].

The fourth quarterly meeting for the Vancouver circuit will be held on the camp ground of the M E Church, on Salmon creek, beginning on Saturday, before the second Sabbath in August.

A basket meeting will commence on Sunday, 14th of August 1870, at 11 o'clock, A M, at the Newsom camp-ground.—Silverton Circuit, the [illegible] appointment and round of the Preacher in charge.

Rev A C Fairchild has done his work so well at Hall street and in East Portland that it will be necessary for the Bishop when he arrives to [illegible] the two and place them respectively in charge of a stationed minister for the ensuing Conference year.

The first quarterly meeting for the Silverton circuit will be held at the Newsom camp-ground, the ensuing Conference year, and will likely be a regular camp meeting. The Cumberland [illegible] have decided to hold a fall camp meeting at their new camp ground at Uncle Sam Allen's, near Aberqua, commencing the Thursday before the third Sunday in October next.

RECKLESS MISCHIEF.—Just at daybreak yesterday morning one of the night prowlers visited the house of Mr C H Friendly, on Stark street near Ninth, and rang the door bell violently. Mr Friendly answered the bell promptly, when the fellow ran off. Shortly afterward some one, [illegible] the same person, amused himself by [illegible] the front door of Dr Glisan's residence near the corner of B and Ninth. As in the other case the hombre seeking amusement ran away when the door was opened. Whether the fellow was only in search of amusement or engaged in testing people through a spirit of mischief, he was certainly a little reckless, for in the present state of insecurity people are liable to shoot, when their houses are disturbed.

SHOOTING IN THE STREET.—A couple of gentlemen going up town Thursday evening about half past 11 o'clock heard the report of a gun about the corner of Columbia and Front, and then a rattling sound as of striking the side of a house. The police also heard the shot and went up there, but nobody could be found capable of explaining the matter. Yesterday we learned that the gun was fired under the window of Mr F Hirsch's bakery at the corner of Front and Columbia, and that on Tuesday morning a gun had been fired at the same place by some unknown person. The presumption is that both guns were fired by the same person, and that the object was to frighten the occupants of the house.

THE WEATHER.—For several days the weather has behaved badly and it seems to be getting worse. We shall be tempted shortly to use that bad name again—The Heated Term—though we had hoped to be spared that humiliation. Yesterday the thermometer in the positively "coolest place" in town indicated 96 degrees of heat on the scale of that scientific Italian chap whose name is so often used in fervent weather. A few inconsiderate people were rash enough to rush the thing to a hundred, but all attempts of that sort met, as they should, the frowns of all prudent folks, and happily for Webfeet the record stands [illegible].

A LOWER DEPTH [illegible].—It is generally understood that stealing the cents off a dead nigger's eyes is just about the depth of meanness. But reality [illegible] the beggarly Indians who hang around the city is one degree at least [illegible]. Some fellow of the latter mean sort went out to the [illegible] ranch below the city a night or two since, and [illegible] a lot of stuff and tried even to get the blankets off the slumbering [illegible]. The [illegible] awoke and gave such a war whoop as frightened the thief into a two-forty trot toward town. The Indian thinks society has fallen into a deplorable condition.

A NEW FIRM.—The Protzman Brothers, as will be seen by an advertisement in our columns, have taken into partnership with them Mr W T Gillihan, and the new firm now goes on under the style of Protzman, Gillihan & Co. These gentlemen have [illegible] by offering for sale [illegible] at a reasonable profit. When they tell a customer that a boot or shoe is a good one it can be relied upon as such. They [illegible] the correct [illegible] in trade and we are [illegible] to see them on [illegible] a profitable business.

RIVER IMPROVEMENTS.—The P T Co's steamer [illegible] is engaged in pulling snags out of the channel of the upper Willamette, and the pile driver is being used to improve the rapids. The plan is to drive piles in such a way as to force all the water through a narrow channel, thus securing depth enough to float a loaded steamer. A fearful responsibility rests upon those charged with the care of children. A careless neglect in the timely use of a well-known safe and certain remedy for that most common and dangerous complaint called up should subject the party to the severest censure when it is well known that a bottle of NEWELL'S PULMONARY SYRUP would have warded off the attack. Mothers and nurses, KEEP IT BY YOUR BEDSIDE and use it upon the first out fear upon the first and it has certain immediate relief.

SATURDAY MORNING AUGUST 6 1870

CITY.

THE SMITH-STARK RECEPTION —According to programme, Congressman Smith and ex Senator Stark were serenaded last evening at the St Charles Hotel. A large crowd gathered at the ring of the horns and in response to the common of a piece executed in Le doer's best style. Smith, Mr Stark and several other gentlemen of the Democratic persuasion appeared on the stand in front of the hotel and Mr Smith proceeded to make a speech He opened by thanking his friends for his kind greeting, congratulated the Democracy upon the victory they had gained, the Democracy upon the victory they had gloriously won at the late election and then divided his subject into the two grand divisions of what he hadn't done and what he had done he made it Joseph's most grand of grand ways. Finally, what he hadn't done This as was, finally, conceived was much the larger and by far the most grateful division of the speech and for awhile it seemed probable that he might go on all night. He closed ever getting to his secondly but he did. The fact is Joseph gave his own horn a blow and not at all a timid or modest blast when he sat down He had no touch of a doubt in his mind that his election to Congress was the only human event that could have prevented the passage of the Oregon railroad bill and the Northern Pacific railroad bill He with apparently without fear of possible consequences to his peace of mind hereafter that had a Republican been elected to a Republican Congress the Oregon neither the Oregon land grant nor the Northern Pacific land grant would have been obtained Joseph would have been obtained. He must have been or he wouldn't have said it so impressively Then Joseph went on to tell how he had always been in Oregon except when absent and how he had attended to all matters of interest to Oregon and how he had been instant in season and out of season how he had watched and prayed, and how upon his Atlantean shoulders he had borne the burdens of the Pacific coast, etc, etc. This part of the speech was a little Joseph and then he went on to say something about himself, as a modest man naturally would on such an occasion This part of his speech included he made some personal allusions of a rather flattering character to himself in connection with certain Congressional labors; in short, he assured his friends he particularly at this point we almost had come to the conclusion that the Hon Kelly had stumbled upon a new competitor for his long legs but as Joseph did not allude to anybody but Joseph we dismissed the unworthy suspicion and settled back upon the original conviction entertained by every one that Joseph no longer hankers after the office, and that he wouldn't under any circumstances accept so worldly and what so ever place unless asked But here Joseph began to get hoarse and aware that he must soon quit. He would not say that our Senators had done what they could (but then what could you expect of such Senators?) It was extremely fortunate for Oregon that he had been born and elected to Congress just exactly at the right time. With an allusion or two to the speaker, which he would not be taken as egotistical, he became hoarser and quit There were more cheers, and a blast from the band Then the people called the name of Stark who made a speech. He was got very grateful for this very flattering ovation in his honor, and then there were more cheers and more music, more speeches by one or two others, and then the Smith Stark serenade ended

METHODIST ITEMS —From the Advocate of this week:

The camp meeting for the Dalles charge to commence on the 11th inst will be held on land of Mr Irving, three miles west of that place.

The fourth quarterly meeting for the Vancouver circuit will be held on the camp ground of the Mr Chamberlain on Salmon creek beginning on Saturday before the second Sabbath in August.

The camp meeting will commence on Sunday the 14th of August, 1870 at 11 o'clock, A M, at the Newsom camp ground—Silverton Circuit, the last quarterly round of the Preacher in charge.

Rev. A. C. Fairchild has done his work so well in Salem and in East Portland, that it will be hard for the Bishop when he arrives to supply both places and place them respectively in charge of a stationed minister for the ensuing conference year.

The fourth quarterly meeting for the Silverton circuit will be held at the Newsom camp-ground on the fourteenth of the year, and will likely be a regular camp-meeting. The Cumberland Presbyterians intend to hold a fall camp meeting at the same camp-ground, at Uncle Sam Allen's place, commencing the Thursday before the third Sunday in October next.

MYSTERIOUS—Just at daybreak yesterday morning, one of the night prowlers visited the residence of Mr C H. Edsadly, on Stark street near Sixth, and rang the door bell violently. Mr Edsadly answered the bell promptly, when the fellow was off. Shortly afterward some one, probably the same person, amused himself by ringing the front door of Dr Glisan's residence on the corner of B and Ninth. As in the other case, the fellow, after having his amusement, ran away before he was captured. Whether the fellow was only in search of amusement, or engaged in some other purpose through a spirit of mischief, he is certainly a little reckless for in the present state of things people are liable to shoot, when their slumbers are disturbed

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING —A couple of gentlemen walking on Thursday evening about half past nine o'clock, heard the report of a gun about the corner of Columbia and Front and then a noise as if of striking the side of a house. The police also heard the shot and went to the place, but nobody could be found capable of explaining the matter Yesterday we learned that the gun was fired under the window of Mr F Bailey, at the corner of Front and Columbia, and that on Tuesday morning a gun had been fired at the same place by some unknown person. The supposition is that both guns were fired by the same person and that the object was to alarm the inmates of the house

THE WEATHER.—For several days the weather has been decidedly, and it seems to be getting hotter. We shall be tempted shortly to use that old paragraph, "The Heated Term" though we hope to be spared that humiliation. It may be said in the positively coolest weather, it indicated 96 degrees of heat on the scale of that scientific Italian chap whose name is often used in fervent weather. A few very sensible people were rash enough to rush the thermometer up to a hundred, but all attempts of that sort must, as they should, meet the frowns of all prudent people. Happily for Webfoot, the record stands

CONTEMPTIBLE DEPTH FOUND —It is generally understood that stealing the cents off a dead pig's eyes is just about the depth of meanness, but stealing from the squalid beggarly Indians hanging around the city is one degree at least lower. Some fellow of this latter mean sort went out to the Indian ranch below the city a night or two since, and stole a lot of stuff and undertook to get the blankets off the slumbering Indians. The savage Lo at this awoke and gave such a war whoop as frightened the thief into a rapid retreat toward town. The Indian thinks society has fallen into a deplorable condition

A NEW FIRM.—The Protzman Brothers, as will be seen by an advertisement in our columns have taken into partnership with them Mr W Gillihan, and the new firm now goes on under the style of Protzman Gillihan & Co These gentlemen have built up a fine trade in this city by dealing in this only the best qualities of goods at a reasonable profit. When they tell a customer that an article or other is a good one it can be relied upon. Their policy is the correct one and leads to a profitable business, and we are not surprised to see them on the high road to a profitable business.

Rev F X Prefontaine missionary priest of Seattle W T arrived here from San Francisco on the steamer Idaho

WOOL —The Orflamme brought up a considerable quantity of California wool for the Oregon City mills In our commercial report will be found the mention of a large arrival of wool from Oregon at San Francisco per bark Whistler This is not exactly carrying coals to Newcastle as many have supposed as the wool which we ship away is almost invariably fine and long staple while the wool received from California is short and coarse It is an exchange of grades for the mutual advantage of all parties

MISS MINNIE PIXLEY'S BENEFIT —It gives us pleasure to announce that a complimentary benefit has been tendered to Miss Minnie Pixley to take place at Oro Fino Theater next Tuesday evening The bill to be offered is a new one embracing the comedy of "Andy Blake or the Irish Diamond" the laughable Yankee farce of Our Gal and a musical melange in all of which the talented young beneficiary will appear prominently

INSANE —Yesterday, when the Oneonta arrived a man having in charge another, bound wrists together and with a cord round the ankle, came off the boat and walked up town. The person in bonds was apparently insane but we failed to learn who he was or whence he came, or who was his keeper

U S DISTRICT COURT—DEADY JUDGE —Friday August United States vs W K Smith; motion for new trial argument concluded and the motion submitted The judge announced that as he desired to give this matter deliberate consideration, he would reserve his decision for two weeks

ASSAULT AND BATTERYS—Within the last day or two there have been a half dozen or more cases assault and battery tried before Recorder Anderson, a fine being assessed in each case but one The temper of the city seems to be pugilistic

A Broadside for Humbugs

Incompetence and assurance generally go hand in hand and of all the tribe of pretentious know nothings with which society is afflicted the unscientific medicine men who attempt to tamper with the health of the community are the most dangerous and the most impudent

So much by way of Text Now for a special and particular application

It appears that a mushroom growth of so called Bitters is springing up under different names in various localities, particularly in the Southern and Western States which the vendors have the hardihood to recommend to easy going people upon whom they think they can impose as a substitute for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, long recognized by every class as the purest and best medicated stimulant and invigorant the world affords

The collections referred to being composed of worthless material offer a larger margin for profit than that Celebrated Tonic and hence the anxiety of dollar worshipping dealers to foist them upon the public in its place

But forewarned is forearmed and all parties whom these distinguished beings are endeavoring to coax and inveigle into substituting trash for a standard remedy are hereby informed of the selfish and sordid motives which underlie the representations in question

The great popularity and vast sales of Hostetter's Bitters cannot, of course be seriously impaired by these tricks of trade, but as the debilitated and suffering have a direct interest in the matter it is only a matter of common humanity to put them on their guard

America's True Position

In [illegible] of the country has been largely [illegible] from Northern Europe. It is they who [illegible] have first broken the sod of the prairies, turned the fertile waste into smiling gardens, built the villages and cities by the profits of their industry, and pushed the frontier by a wave of civilization west [illegible] thirty miles annually. American [illegible] have been inspired by their surroundings to do all that [illegible] to develop a continent, and among the marvels of this age is their readiness to adapt themselves to the habits of those who preceded them, and easy compliance with the laws and customs of the country. They have brought their wealth, education and industry here, and cast their fortunes among us, not as foreigners, but as Americans.

We who represent a few generations of descent from the earliest settlers know but little or have forgotten the petty kingdoms and small subdivisions which mark the map of modern Europe, and from which our ancestors came. The difference between a Prussian and Austrian, or the score of lesser nationalities, is all lost to the mass of native born Americans. The terms German and Scandinavian cover all from the north part of the continent, and how any can bring the prejudices of local nationality here, and retain them, is incomprehensible to the American mind.

When we come to emigrants from England, Ireland and Scotland, they, though a different people, are of the race of Northmen—the men born to conquer difficulties and to be rulers of the world. Why they or any of them should import the small local prejudice and hostile feeling of a former nationality to this country passes any prompting of reason. In becoming Americans they should surrender forever their evidences of past hatred, and while not losing sympathy for friends and kindred, should be as great as the country, and as the ideas on which its institutions are based.

These are the races of men who have made America what it is. We owe nothing to the Latin race, except the boon its scholars, poets and statesmen have furnished, in the greatness of their history and literary works. America, in all that makes up its ideas of liberty and equality, its education, its great purposes and sympathies, is of the north northern. What it borrows from more southern climates is added light. It absorbs to itself the science and learning of all, but its own destiny and mission is in the hands of Northmen, who are to work on the grand problem of commingled races, as it may effect the final man.

Such being our actural condition, on what ground can any portion of our people sympathize with the attack of France on the unity of Germany? With the few emigrants from France, this is perhaps natural, yet we are unable to see how a Republican Frenchman could justify the proceeding. But on what ground can the Irish take that side? What has France ever done for Ireland, but to embroil its people in new difficulties? Is there an Irishman who supposes France would give liberty to his country if that power controlled its destiny? If Irishmen owe England perpetual hate for the wrongs it has done them, it is equally certain they owe nothing to France. That people have had intervals of crazy anarchy which has been miscalled Democracy, but they have never yet been able to escape the blighting thraldom of despotism that held them, and holds them still.

The liberties of men have increased only by the overthrow of petty kingdoms and the substitution of great nations in the place of small tyrannies. The unity of the German Fatherland was an event in the world's progress—a gain for liberty and the rights of man. If let alone, the free spirit of the people would have speedily asserted itself, and they have been kept in arms only from the danger of their surroundings. They have united among themselves, and committed aggressions on no one. They have been ready to defend, but slow to attack. What is this war of France but a deliberate purpose to destroy the unity of Germany—to break in fragments a great people, struggling to free themselves from internal difficulties, totally disconnected from the French? What purpose has Napoleon, but to roll back the tide of progress, and inflict on an innocent people the fetters they have just shaken off? Does any sane man believe that a conquest by the French would elevate, or in any way benefit the people of Prussia? What would it indicate but the clank of chains placed about the limbs of a brave people, for no purpose but the meanness of personal vanity and ambition? The days of military glory through organized slaughter of the human race, without a motive to elevate a country or benefit the world, are past. Even French Republicans at home oppose this brutality, then why should any class of our foreign population be less republican than the noblest spirits of France? There is no nationality on this side of the ocean that can afford to take sides with the oppressor. The war itself is without a substantial cause, and a crime against the liberties and happiness of mankind.

A Man Loses his Wife at Cards.—The Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise contains the following:

About eight or nine months since a man living in the northern part of this city went out into the northern of the State to seek his fortune in the new mines of that section, leaving his wife and one child here in town. Some seven months ago a gallant disciple of St. Crispin persuaded the White Pine widow to take up her abode with him in a house which he furnished for her. The new pair lived together for about seven months, when a few days ago the genuine husband returned. Of course there was no trouble in the camp, but after some quarreling the two men agreed to play a game of seven-up for the woman. The came off last Saturday night and the husband won his wife back by just "two points." The man claimed his wife, and the man of leather could not say but that he had fairly won her. The woman preferred the shoemaker, but the husband and winner was determined to have his own. He packed up what furniture they possessed, and last Saturday evening, with all his household goods and gods, left by a fast freight wagon for California. When the wagon started from North C street there was quite a scene. A crowd of nearly 100 persons had collected to see the husband carry away his "stake," and there was much merriment over the romantic affair. The woman cried, and wanted to stay with the shoemaker, and the shoemaker cried at parting with the treasure he had lost by not holding enough "trumps." He asked some of the crowd if they thought he would be arrested if he attempted to take the woman out of the wagon. They told him he had lost her "on the square," and he must bear it like a man, so the wagon moved on, and soon the fair one was gone from his gaze.

A Remarkable Synagogue.—The Jews of Turin are building a new place of worship which, according to an account in the Paris Temps, is a very extraordinary affair.

The most remarkable of all structures at Turin is the synagogue of the Israelites. It is likely the finest and richest synagogue in the world, and at the same time the most remarkable monument of Turin. Upon a small square hill, with adapted stairs, stands a Greek temple in white and pink. Above a little backwards is a kind of second temple. The whole is traversed by galleries, adorned with small pillars and thousands of splendid embellishments. White and reddish colors predominate. It is Greek and Moorish—it is Romanic and Gothic; there is a blending of all styles, without overstraining and without bad taste. But what makes this structure something bizarre and unexpected is a massive tower with pierced walls rising above this ornamented beautiful construction, reminding of Asia and Egypt, of Thebes and Nineveh. Surely the architect of this building was gifted by imagination. He was an able interpreter of the Hebrew temple to be erected at the brink of a strange river. Never since the great destruction has Israel possessed a more magnificent edifice in which the hymns of David resounded. This building is fit for the talented Italian Jews, who are a power at the Exchange, at the press and at the parliament.

R. G. Haliburton, son of the famous "Sam Slick," is a candidate for the Chief Justiceship of Manitoba.

The San Francisco Commercial Herald of the 4th [illegible] discourses thus on financial affairs:

"It is too soon yet to ascertain what effect the France-Prussian war will have upon American securities. [illegible] In the first flush of excitement and under the influence of [illegible] European Governments. All or nearly all may at any moment be plunged [illegible] war spirit is becoming greatly aroused in England [illegible] its securities, but not so with this country. Every feature is full of promise, and her financial jewels must occupy the first place in the consideration [illegible]"

In commercial circles the week has been quiet. The very warm weather has [illegible] a depressing influence upon trade, and the harvest being in full blast there are but few buyers in the market. Not much business can be reasonably expected for the next few weeks.

In Agricultural Goods the trade of the week has been inconsiderable, the season for harvesting machines having practically closed. In another week or two we may have an entire revision of our tables of seasonable goods.

The Hardware trade has been very dull. Prices are however firm in consequence of the governing influence of the San Francisco market. We have mail advices that on the 21st ult. the California Hardware and Metal Board of Trade, of San Francisco, held a meeting and by resolution adopted the Parker Mill list of prices as the basis to regulate the prices of cut nails, that is to say—take the lowest priced nails on said list to correspond with the present price of $6, and all other nails at all bear a proportionate advance, with the exception that brad heads shall be the same price as finishing. Our quotations correspond with the list published by the Board.

Groceries—This line is about the only one which has enjoyed more than a fair trade. Orders from all parts of the State have been received and dealers have been kept busy.

Dry Goods—The market is excessively quiet; prices as heretofore quoted.

Produce—The market is unsettled. Wheat is quotable at $1 00 for good white, but sales have been made during the week as low as 92½. Red, 90c. Oats are lower, dealers offering no more than 40c. Jobbing at 50c. Middlings are a little higher—jobbing at $32 50. Barley is dull at our quotations.

Provisions—Side Bacon is jobbing readily at 16c; buying prices 15@15½. Hams—buying in demand at 18½. Lard—jobbing in bulk at 15. Eggs are higher; quotable at 25.

In the Retail Market foreign fruit is quite out of supply, and advices from San Francisco represent the supplies there as meagre. Domestic fruits are in good supply—such as Apples, Pears, Plums, Berries, etc. The first Oregon Peaches and Bartlett Pears were received August 1st.

The rate of Legal Tenders for August in the San Francisco revenue district has been fixed at 86c.

We clip the following items from the San Francisco Commercial Herald of the 21st:

We remark a notable decline in storage rates for Flour and Grain the present season. The proprietors of the North Point and Eureka Warehouses have taken the initiative issuing circulars to this effect. First month's storage on Grain 50c ℔ ton, weighing in free of charge for first two months' storage 75c; first three months, $1 for all after three months, 25c per month, charging for re-weighing 10c ℔ ton.

Our markets for Flour and Grain are at the moment in a quiescent state, and prices largely nominal, owing to the constant fluctuations of markets abroad and the general uncertainties attending the gathering of their crops, all of which are more or less affected by the war pervading the European Continent. Besides shipowners are taking advantage of the situation, demanding high freights to England, and this in turn proves to the execution of orders within limits. Our mills for the present are, for the most part, idle, having no flour orders on hand. Distillers have also withdrawn from the market; consequently prices of Grain have given way. Barley and Oats are both decidedly easier to the buyer, for the same reasons. Bran and Middlings are higher, the product being diminished in the face of increased demand, the same being largely required by dairymen for food purposes, now that pasturage is well nigh dried up. Hay is very plentiful and the market overstocked. Potatoes on the contrary are in lessened supply and prices higher. Beans appear to be neglected. The Mustard Seed crop is said to be a complete failure. Wool supplies are limited. The 31 bales ex Sierranda, for Liverpool, came from Victoria, per steamer Prince July 18. The Fall clip is said to be promising, and will no doubt make its appearance early in the season. Hides, Leather and Tallow ease off a little, on account of the enhanced premium upon gold, besides supplies are rather more free. The receipts of certain articles of Oregon produce [illegible]
